

What does Ghostwriting cost?

The ghostwriting process has several variables that determine price. Some of these include: Word count Amount of manuscript that is complete Amount of research necessary to complete the manuscript How complete the idea of the author is How intensive any necessary editing of grammar, spelling, structure etc. will be Also, the typical first time author averages between 40,000 to 70,000 words in their first book. It is a good idea to keep it around this number, and not much higher so publishers don't feel they're risking too much of their investment on a first time author. Because ghostwriting is subject to variability on these factors, it is difficult to provide a price range for ghostwriting services without seeing at least a few chapters, or an outline.
